the foundation of
all that we do.

Since 1831, Mercy has been bringing care to where it was needed.

ABOUT MERCY

The Sisters of Mercy, a Catholic order, was founded in Dublin, Ireland in 1831 by Catherine McAuley.

Catherine used her inheritance not for her own benefit, but for the work of God.

From the beginning, the Sisters of Mercy believed in bringing care to where it was needed. They became known as the "The Walking Sisters," nuns who left their convents and cloisters to care for the sick, no matter where they were.
